

Witch Bottle for Protection

Witch bottles are a magickal practice rooted in European folklore! Hundreds of years ago, these bottles were used to protect against the magic of witches. Today, witch bottles are used for protection against negative energy and malevolent magick.

Protect yourself and your home with these simple instructions!

You will need...

- A jar or bottle
- Vinegar (or urine if you're comfortable with that)
- Dried rosemary
- Sharp objects, e.g. pins or needles
- Matches
- Two candles - one black and one white
- A small piece of cloth

Instructions

1. Place your jar on the cloth. Place your white and black candles on each side of the jar. Light the candles.
2. Add your sharp objects to the jar while visualizing the sharp objects piercing through any negativity you may feel.
3. Fill your jar with the vinegar, holding the visualization of negativity being absorbed and neutralized.
4. Once complete, strike three matches and add them to the jar individually. Add the dried rosemary and visualize the steam rising from the bottle as your curse being dissolved away.
5. Seal the jar and blow out your candles.
6. With the bottle turned upside down, find a place where it will remain undisturbed. Just like that, the curse is broken, and your home is now shielded by the ancient and potent protection of a witch bottle.